About the Specialist Dementia Care Program

The Specialist Dementia Care Program is a Department of Health (Commonwealth) grant-funded initiative delivered through three approved providers in Queensland, including Abri.

What is the SDCP?

This program provides a high level of tailored care for people living with dementia who are exhibiting severe behavioural and psychological symptoms of dementia (BPSD) and are unable to be effectively cared for by mainstream aged care services.

To be eligible for the program a person is referred to Dementia Support Australia and undergoes a tailored assessment.

The program helps people living with dementia by:

- reducing or stabilising a person's behaviour and psychological symptoms of dementia in a dedicated dementia-friendly environment.
- supporting the person to move to a less intensive care setting when they no longer need the specialist services provided by SDCP unit.
- supporting aged care providers with the transition of SDCP residents back into mainstream services.

What does the SDCP unit look like?

The accommodation consists of nine rooms and living areas that have been designed to foster a small, cottage-like, dementia-friendly living environment.

The team of clinical staff have been specifically recruited and trained in the delivery of a person-centred, multidisciplinary approach. Additionally, this model ensures all residents have access to medical specialists to ensure appropriate clinical oversight and care. A range of allied health professional services are also available.

By fostering this approach to care, the program is able to deliver the highest level of quality care to residents.

How long will a client be a part of the program?

The program provides transitional, temporary support. It is expected the average length of stay will be around 12 months.

When behavioural and psychological symptoms stabilise, the team will support residents to transition into a less intensive care setting.
